Ms. Sassower--

Activity in the Washington, DC, area was completely disrupted yesterday (Thursday 9/18) with the closing of mass transit and all government and most private offices because of high winds and rain expected from tropical storm Isabel.

Since committee members couldn't travel, the ACLU Litigation Screening Committee meeting was also canceled.

Most offices remain closed today (Friday 9/19), so the process of resuming normal business is not yet really started. I am writing even though our office is closed since I know you would be eager to hear from us.

Our Legal Director will begin on Monday to consider how to make up for the missed meeting since there were a number of matters we hoped to get to and that need decision before the next meeting October 16.

It was good to see in one of your recent communications that the court has changed the next appearance to a date in October.

Thank you for your patience. We'll keep you posted.
