The AJS comments on the draft rules were filed on October 30, 2007. No other comments were filed. AJS has not issued any press releases or published any editorials or analysis of the Breyer committee report or the federal conduct and disability rules other than the one identified in your memo. AJS has not issued a press release on the proposed federal inspector general legislation, but the legislation is referred to in its May/June 2005 editorial "Listening to Judge Lefkow." AJS editorials are prepared by an AJS standing editorial committee.

The attached supersedes the memo, previously faxed and e-mailed.

The sole change is to the question on the memo's 2nd page about legislation to establish an Inspector General for the Judicial Branch. The question now adds the following underlined words: "Has AJS taken no position on such legislation, other than what appears at the end of the 'Politics and progress in federal judicial accountability' editorial?"

Apologies for any inconvenience.
