Dear Ms. Sassower:

We have received and reviewed the lengthy packet of documents that you recently left at our offices.

Unfortunately, we remain unable to take any action on behalf of you, your mother, Doris Sassower, or the Center for Judicial Accountability. The materials that you sent to us are all part of private disputes between your organization and various governmental entities and representatives. As you know, the Fund for Modern Courts limits its activities to research, public education, and policy-related activities. It does not represent clients in private disputes, nor does it intervene in litigation. The assistance you seek falls entirely outside the scope of Modern Courts' mission and capabilities, and we are thus unable to assume any role in your efforts.

We wish you the best in your endeavors.

Very truly yours,

Steven M. Zeidman
