THANK YOU for writing The New York Times newsroom. We are grateful to readers who take the time to help us report thoroughly and accurately. Your message will reach the appropriate editor or reporter promptly.

PLEASE NOTE: For security reasons, we do not open email attachments. If your email included an attachment, please resend your message with all of the information in the body of the email. If your email did not have an attachment, there is no reason to resend it, of course.

What happens now that your message has been received, or if you have more questions?

ACCURACY: If you have pointed out an error, the article will be corrected online and a correction appended; a correction will also appear in print editions as soon as possible. Corrections for articles in weekly sections usually appear in those sections. Because dozens of readers often point out the same error, we cannot notify each person that we are publishing a correction. Please accept our thanks now for having pointed out the error.

When an issue of accuracy is raised, at least three editors review the query. Often re-reporting is requested; sometimes the issue is turned over to our research department. Because of the volume of queries we receive, we are not able to send a response explaining why we decided no correction is necessary. But please know that every query about a possible error is taken seriously and thoroughly considered.

NEWS COVERAGE: If you are writing to give us feedback on our coverage, your message will be forwarded to the appropriate department. Because of the volume of email we receive, we cannot respond to every comment. But we pay respectful attention to all messages, even those that are part of organized letter-writing campaigns, for which we are not staffed to reply individually.

EDITORIALS: News and opinion departments operate separately at The Times. If you have written to comment on an editorial or an Op-Ed article and want your comments considered for publication as a Letter to the Editor, please resend your message to letters@nytimes.com. More information on submitting letters can be found at nytimes.com/ref/membercenter/help/lettertoeditor.html

Send Op-ed submissions to oped@nytimes.com. More information can be found at nytimes.com/ref/membercenter/help/opedsubmit.html.

NEWSPAPER DELIVERY: Questions about the availability or delivery of The Times may be telephoned to 1-800-698-4637, e-mailed to 1-800@nytimes.com or posted at homedelivery.nytimes.com

NYTIMES.COM: For technical problems, write: help@nytimes.com

RESEARCH: We are not staffed to do research for the public. But our online archives, dating to 1851, can be accessed by going to nytimes.com and using the search function.

REPRINTS OF ARTICLES: write to rights@nytimes.com

TO BUY PICTURES: write to photosales@nytimes.com

BACK COPIES: 800-543-5380.

CUSTOMER SERVICE DIRECTORY: Many questions about The Times are answered at nytimes.com/ref/membercenter/help/infoservdirectory.html
