Dear Mr. Dicker --

A propos of your today's article, "Spitzer Made his Buddies Vitamin 'Rich'", there are pending ethics and criminal complaints against Mr. Spitzer, long ago filed with the NYS Ethics Commission and the US Attorney for the Eastern District of New York, based, inter alia, on his conflicts of interest, born of his personal, professional, and relationships. These complaints not only detail and document Mr. Spitzer's refusal to respect fundamental conflict of interest rules, but its results: (1) the hoax of his "public integrity unit" and failure to investigate fully-documented complaints of corruption of state agencies and public officers; and (2) his use of fraudulent defense tactics to defeat my public interest lawsuit against the NYS Commission on Judicial Conduct, sued for corruption.

These complaints are physically part of the file of the lawsuit -- the significance of which is highlighted in CJA's story proposal. A copy of that proposal, along with my October 10th letter to the Post editorial board, is attached.

Let me know if you would like to see these ethics and criminal complaints for yourself -- as they will further reveal to you the extraordinary conflicts-of-interest which, with Mr. Spitzer's knowledge, have led the Ethics Commission and US Attorney's office to simply "sit" on these complaints for more than three years, without referring them to independent investigative authorities.
