

CENTER for JUDICIAL ACCOUNTABILITY, INC.

P. O. Box 69, Gedney Station
White Plains, New York 10605-0069

Tel. (914) 421-1200
Fax (914) 428-1994

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

TO: THE NEW YORK TIMES, METRO NEWS, ASSIGNMENT DESK
(tel: 212- 556-1533; Fax: 212-556-4188)
8:15 a.m. 5 pages

P R E S S R E L E A S E : A U G U S T 2 7 , 1 9 9 7

New York State Attorney General Dennis Vacco is the subject of a scorching ad in today's New York Law Journal. The ad, "Restraining 'Liars in the Courtroom' and on the Public Payroll", describes how New York's highest law enforcement officer engages in litigation misconduct to defend state officials and agencies sued for official misconduct, including corruption -- when he has no legitimate defense. It provides three graphic examples. In the first case, Attorney General Vacco defended the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct, in the second case, Appellate Division, Second Department justices, and, in the third case, those same justices, as well as his own office, sued as a defendant. The third case is now on appeal before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and seeks disciplinary and criminal referral of Attorney General Vacco for his "fraudulent and deceitful conduct" in the district court. The ad expressly challenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral argument, this Friday, August 29th, and "personally defend the appeal -- if he dares!" [10 a.m., 40 Centre Street-NYC, courtroom 506].

The $3,077.22 ad, whose text follows, is presented by the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, whose $16,770 New York Times Op-Ed page ad, "Where Do You Go When Judges Break the Law?", is also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the backdrop to the Second Circuit case.

For further information, telephone CJA at 914-421-1200. The three case files, cited in today's ad, are available upon request. PLEASE HAVE YOUR REPORTERS CALL ATTORNEY GENERAL VACCO FOR COMMENT!

* * *

[New York Law Journal, August 27, 1997, at page 3]

RESTRAINING "LIARS IN THE COURTROOM" AND ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

On June 17th, The New York Law Journal published a Letter to the Editor from a former New York State Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.

UNTABILITY, INC.

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

SIGNMENT DESK

AUGUST 27, 1997

ject of a scorching ad in today's New rtroom' and on the Public Payroll, r engages in litigation misconduct to
, including corruption -- when he has e first case, Attorney General Vacco duct, in the second case, Appellate ose same justices, as well as his own before the Second Circuit Court of y General Vacco for his "fraudulent allenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral he appeal -- if he dares!"

ter for Judicial Accountability, Inc.
$16,770 New York Times Op-Ed also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the hree case files, cited in today's ad,

'COURTROOM'
YROLL

7, at page 3]

'OURTROOM'
YROLL

... a letter to the Editor from a former Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.

DATE TIME
E-MAIL NAME
SUBJECT
PAGE #
REPLY
MODE

08/27 08:17
1125564186
00:25:14
05
OK
STANDARD
EOM

PERMISSION REPRODUCTION PROHIBITED

TIME : 08/27/1997 08:00
NAME : CJA
FA : 5144284334
TEL : 5144211000

CENTER for JUDICIAL ACCOUNTABILITY, INC.

P. O. Box 69, Gedney Station
White Plains, New York 10605-0069

Tel. (914) 421-1200
Fax (914) 428-4994

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

TO: THE NEW YORK TIMES: Joyce Purnick/Jan Hoffman
(Fax: 212-556-3690)
8:30 a.m. 5 pages

P R E S S R E L E A S E : A U G U S T 2 7 , 1 9 9 7

New York State Attorney General Dennis Vacco is the subject of a scorching ad in today's New York Law Journal. The ad, "Restraining 'Liars in the Courtroom' and on the Public Payroll", describes how New York's highest law enforcement officer engages in litigation misconduct to defend state officials and agencies sued for official misconduct, including corruption -- when he has no legitimate defense. It provides three graphic examples. In the first case, Attorney General Vacco defended the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct, in the second case, Appellate Division, Second Department justices, and, in the third case, those same justices, as well as his own office, sued as a defendant. The third case is now on appeal before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and seeks disciplinary and criminal referral of Attorney General Vacco for his "fraudulent and deceitful conduct" in the district court. The ad expressly challenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral argument, this Friday, August 29th, and "personally defend the appeal -- if he dares!" [10 a.m., 40 Centre Street-NYC, courtroom 506].

The $3,077.22 ad, whose text follows, is presented by the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, whose $16,770 New York Times Op-Ed page ad, "Where Do You Go When Judges Break the Law?", is also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the backdrop to the Second Circuit case.

For further information, telephone CJA at 914-421-1200. The three case files, cited in today's ad, are available upon request. PLEASE HAVE YOUR REPORTERS CALL ATTORNEY GENERAL VACCO FOR COMMENT!

* * *

[New York Law Journal, August 27, 1997, at page 3]

RESTRAINING "LIARS IN THE COURTROOM" AND ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

On June 17th, The New York Law Journal published a Letter to the Editor from a former New York State Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.

TRANSMISSION VERIFICATION REPORT

TIME : 08/27/1997 08:35
NAME : CJA
FAX : 9144284994
TEL : 9144211000

| DATE, TIME | FAX NO., NAME | DURATION | PAGES | RESULT | MODE |
|-------------|---------------|----------|-------|--------|----------|
| 08/27 08:30 | 11125563650 | 00:04:48 | 28 | OK | STANDARD |

JUDICIAL ACCOUNTABILITY, INC.

421-1200
428-4994

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

urnick/Jan Hoffman

RE: AUGUST 27, 1997

Vacco is the subject of a scorching ad in today's New York Times 'and on the Public Payroll', in which a former justice's placement officer engages in litigation misconduct to conceal judicial misconduct, including corruption -- when he has many examples. In the first case, Attorney General Vacco on Judicial Conduct, in the second case, Appellate Division, in the third case, those same justices, as well as his own appeal now on appeal before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, a reversal of Attorney General Vacco for his "fraudulent and unethical" ad expressly challenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral argument and personally defend the appeal -- if he dares!" [NY Times 8/27/97, p. 6].

Enclosed by the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. is a copy of the organization, whose $16,770 New York Times Op-Ed "Vacco Breaks the Law?", is also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the

421-1200. The three case files, cited in today's ad, SAVE YOUR REPORTERS CALL ATTORNEY

* *

1, August 27, 1997, at page 3]

"S IN THE COURTROOM" PUBLIC PAYROLL

On June 17th, The New York Law Journal published a Letter to the Editor from a former New York State Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.

CENTER for JUDICIAL ACCOUNTABILITY, INC.

P. O. Box 69, Gedney Station
White Plains, New York 10605-0069

Tel. (914) 421-1200
Fax (914) 428-4994

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

TO: THE NEW YORK TIMES: Albany Bureau
(Fax: 518-436-7109)
8:35 a.m. 5 pages

P R E S S R E L E A S E : A U G U S T 2 7 , 1 9 9 7

New York State Attorney General Dennis Vacco is the subject of a scorching ad in today's New York Law Journal. The ad, "Restraining 'Liars in the Courtroom' and on the Public Payroll", describes how New York's highest law enforcement officer engages in litigation misconduct to defend state officials and agencies sued for official misconduct, including corruption -- when he has no legitimate defense. It provides three graphic examples. In the first case, Attorney General Vacco defended the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct, in the second case, Appellate Division, Second Department justices, and, in the third case, those same justices, as well as his own office, sued as a defendant. The third case is now on appeal before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and seeks disciplinary and criminal referral of Attorney General Vacco for his "fraudulent and deceitful conduct" in the district court. The ad expressly challenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral argument, this Friday, August 29th, and "personally defend the appeal -- if he dares!" [10 a.m., 40 Centre Street-NYC, courtroom 506].

The $3,077.22 ad, whose text follows, is presented by the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, whose $16,770 New York Times Op-Ed page ad, "Where Do You Go When Judges Break the Law?", is also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the backdrop to the Second Circuit case.

For further information, telephone CJA at 914-421-1200. The three case files, cited in today's ad, are available upon request. PLEASE HAVE YOUR REPORTERS CALL ATTORNEY GENERAL VACCO FOR COMMENT!

* * *

[New York Law Journal, August 27, 1997, at page 3]

RESTRAINING "LIARS IN THE COURTROOM" AND ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

On June 17th, The New York Law Journal published a Letter to the Editor from a former New York State Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.

ACCOUNTABILITY, INC.

1200
4994

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

au

E: AUGUST 27, 1997

is the subject of a scorching ad in today's New in the Courtroom' and on the Public Payroll', ment officer engages in litigation misconduct to misconduct, including corruption -- when he has mples. In the first case, Attorney General Vacco Judicial Conduct, in the second case, Appellate third case, those same justices, as well as his own w on appeal before the Second Circuit Court of ral of Attorney General Vacco for his "fraudulent l expressly challenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral nally defend the appeal -- if he dares!"

ted by the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. ization, whose $16,770 New York Times Op-Ed k the Law?", is also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the

21-1200. The three case files, cited in today's ad, WE YOUR REPORTERS CALL ATTORNEY

* *

August 27, 1997, at page 3]

S IN THE COURTROOM'
UBLIC PAYROLL

On June 17th, The New York Law Journal published a Letter to the Editor from a former New York State Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.

TRANSMISSION VERIFICATION REPORT

TIME : 09/27/1997 08:48
NAME : CJA
FAX : 9144264994
TEL : 9144211200

DATE, TIME
FAX NO./NAME
DURATION
PAGE(S)
RESULT
MODE

09/27 08:48
15184157108
00:05:00
09
STANDARD
EDM

CENTER for JUDICIAL ACCOUNTABILITY, INC.

P. O. Box 69, Gedney Station
White Plains, New York 10605-0069

Tel. (914) 421-1200
Fax (914) 428-4994

E-Mail: judgewatch@aol.com
Web site: www.judgewatch.org

P R E S S R E L E A S E : A U G U S T 2 9 , 1 9 9 7

New York State Attorney General Dennis Vacco is the subject of a scorching ad in the August 27th issue of the New York Law Journal. The ad, "Restraining 'Liars in the Courtroom' and on the Public Payroll", describes how New York's highest law enforcement officer engages in litigation misconduct to defend state officials and agencies sued for official misconduct, including corruption -- when he has no legitimate defense. It provides three graphic examples. In the first case, Attorney General Vacco defended the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct, in the second case, Appellate Division, Second Department justices, and, in the third case, those same justices, as well as his own office, sued as a defendant. The third case is now on appeal before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and seeks disciplinary and criminal referral of Attorney General Vacco for his "fraudulent and deceitful conduct" in the district court.

The ad expressly challenges Mr. Vacco to be at the oral argument, today, Friday, August 29th, and "personally defend the appeal -- if he dares!" [10 a.m., 40 Centre Street-NYC, courtroom 506].

The $3,077.22 ad, whose text follows, is presented by the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, whose $16,770 New York Times Op-Ed page ad, "Where Do You Go When Judges Break the Law?", is also enclosed. That 1994 ad is the backdrop to the Second Circuit case.

For further information, telephone CJA at 914-421-1200. The three case files, cited in today's ad, are available upon request. PLEASE CALL ATTORNEY GENERAL VACCO FOR COMMENT!

* * *

[New York Law Journal, August 27, 1997, at page 3]

RESTRAINING "LIARS IN THE COURTROOM" AND ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

On June 17th, The New York Law Journal published a Letter to the Editor from a former New York State Assistant Attorney General, whose opening sentence read "Attorney General Dennis Vacco's worst enemy would not suggest that he tolerates unprofessional or irresponsible conduct by his assistants after the fact". Yet, more than three weeks earlier, the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA), a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' organization, submitted a proposed Perspective Column to the Law Journal, detailing the Attorney General's knowledge of, and complicity in, his staff's litigation misconduct -- before, during, and after the fact. The Law Journal refused to print it and refused to explain why. Because of the transcending public importance of that proposed Perspective Column, CJA has paid $3,077.22 so that you can read it. It appears today on page 4.