Dear Professor:

I'm glad that you will "look forward to reading [my] letter". However, how is your e-mail responsive to mine?

Please advise so that I may be guided accordingly.

Thank you.

Elena Sassower

Subject: Follow-up

Dear Professor Bybee:

Following up our October 17th telephone conversation and the Institute's October 19th symposium "The Last Umpires? The News Media, the ABA, and Other Independent Voices in the Federal Judicial Confirmation Process", whose video I have viewed, I have written you a letter. Kindly provide me with the Institute's fax number so that I may fax it to you, in addition to e-mailing it. If you would also like a mailed original, please provide me with a street or postal address.

I would appreciate if you would provide me with e-mail, fax, and/or mailing addresses for Stephen Tober and Lyle Denniston -- as they are indicated recipients of the letter, along with Professor Lee Epstein, whose contact information I already have.

Finally, please confirm that it was Associate Director Bybee who asked the important question at the symposium "what's stopping" the media from covering process and substance, as opposed to focusing on outcomes and winners and losers.

Thank you.
