Dear Jon,

It is I who am honored to have the benefit of your advocacy in this important appeal in which First Amendment and fundamental citizen rights are so critically at stake. Thank you -- and thank all at the National Lawyer Guild who have recognized the significance of this case.

I believe I had the privilege of meeting you -- or was it your partner? -- on December 3, 2003 in the transcription office. I recall a very enjoyable conversation.

I do not believe there will be any need for a motion to file an amicus brief -- as I expect Mr. Fisher will consent (202-514-7088), obviating the necessity of a motion.

Mr. Fisher has already consented to the amicus brief being written by Professor Andrew Horwitz with respect to my 4th appellate issue: the unconstitutionality of Judge Holeman's apology letters condition of probation and the unconstitutionality and unlawfulness of the six-month jail sentence he thereafter imposed when I exercised my right to decline probation.

I wish you a wonderful mini-vacation and look forward to speaking with you upon your return. Unless I hear from you to the contrary, I will mail you a copy of the appeal papers (including 3-volume 1784-page appendix) to your office.

Finally, I note from your very impressive website that you went to George Washington University Law School. Did you study with -- or do you know -- Professor Turley? He has expressed interest in writing about and publicizing the case -- and I have already sent him a copy of the appeal papers. My correspondence with Professor Turley about the case is posted on the "disruption of Congress" page of our website, www.judgewatch.org -- which is where you'll also find posted my appellant's brief, supplemental fact statement, and a wealth of other pertinent materials.

Again, thank you so very much.

Elena
