TO: Credibility Coalition

I am the director and co-founder of the New York-based non-partisan, not-profit citizens' organization Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA) – and have a unique archive of primary-source, documentary evidence, spanning 30-plus years, chronicling the knowingly false, misleading, corruption-abetting, election-rigging fashion in which the press operates, including what it puts “online” – and, of course, increasingly, news publications have no paper editions.

Your website states:

“We Are a Research Community

The Credibility Coalition is a research community that fosters collaborative approaches to understanding the veracity, quality and credibility of online information that is a foundation of civil society.

We are journalists, researchers, academics, students, policy-makers, technologists and engaged non-specialists.

We aim to develop common standards for information credibility by incubating activities and initiatives that bring together people and institutions from a variety of backgrounds.

Credibility Coalition's core values are diversity, collaboration and thoughtfulness.

I would like to be a part of your research community – and contribute CJA's archive of primary-source, documentary evidence for the your research and scholarship. It is accessible from CJA's website, www.judgewatch.org, via the left sidebar panel “Press Suppression”. The direct link is here.

By the way, I learned about the Credibility Coalition only the other day, upon doing a google search for the Integrity News Initiative of the City University of New York's Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism, which brought up a webpage for it on your website. Do you have any information as to why the Integrity News Initiative, which had been philanthropically funded with $14 million in 2017, was eliminated and when precisely?

Do contact me.

Thank you.
