This follows a voice mail message I left with your Washington office a short time ago. I am director and co-founder of the nonpartisan, nonprofit citizens' organization, Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. (CJA). Based on press reports of your opposition to President Trump's formal request for rescission of appropriations for NPR and PBS, it would seem that you are unaware that they and the CPB are corrupt - and that this was the subject of a fully-documented February 18, 2025 letter I wrote to House DOGE Subcommittee Chair Marjorie Taylor Green and FCC Chair Brendan Carr, which both the Republican and Democratic sides of the Subcommittee have concealed. The letter and the "paper trail" of its odyssey to date are posted on CJA's website, www.judgewatch.org, accessible via the prominent center panel "Defunding NPR, PBS -- & Firing the CPB's Inspector General, for starters". Please examine these [so] that [you] will know that there must be congressional investigation, pronto – with NO funding to NPR, PBS, and CPB until “heads roll” and safeguards are restored. Indeed, it appears that there has been NO meaningful congressional oversight of NPR, PBS, and CPB for decades. Please have someone call me. Thank you.
