Responding to your generic e-mail which opens to your website on which you ask the question: "Want to collaborate with The New York World on a project? Let's Talk" – and whose hyperlink on "Talk" brings up a blank e-mail message to send you.

Yes! Absolutely! We are eager to "collaborate with The New York World on a project" -- and have been waiting, since May 7th, when we sent you the above e-mail, to "Talk" to you about it.

Please call, as soon as possible, so that we can furnish you with our half of the "collaboration": primary-source evidence from "inside [our New York] government -- from which you can expose the corruption that infests all three branches and develop powerful, reform-generating stories.

Let us move forward, together!

Thank you.
