

New York Law Journal
April 12, 1999

Attorney General Eliot L. Spitzer, whose salary was increased to $151,000 from $110,000 by the Legislature in January, has given substantial raises to about two dozen aides in his office. The First Deputy Attorney General, Michelle Hirshman, saw her salary rise to $141,000, up from $114,600, a 23 percent boost. "The increases are helpful in attracting and retaining top-flight attorneys," said Darren Dopp, a spokesman for Mr. Spitzer.

---